

ACRYLICS

Many people love working in acrylics and I've had requests for a list of colors that closely mimic those that I use in my oil paintings. Since my painting style is done alla prima (working wet into wet) the quick drying time of traditional acrylics can be a challenge but luckily, there are retarders and brands of acrylic paints that stay open/wet longer allowing for a similar process to take place.

Golden Open Acrylics is one of those brands. They stay wet longer on your palette, painting and brushes than traditional acrylics so that is what I have chosen to list here. After looking through the Golden Acrylics site to see which colors are more transparent and which are opaque AND checking with the artists in the Dream.Love.Paint group who are using them (thank you all!!), this is the list I've come up with.

It's intended to be a starting place for you to build your palette with colors that you love and that work well for you!
